Here's how much they're asking for condos in new Bellevue tower (Images)

The developer of One88, the luxury condo tower under construction in downtown Bellevue, reports that more than 1,300 people have toured the project's sales gallery, which opened Saturday.

The 21-story building, which is rising at Bellevue Way Northeast and Northeast Second Street, will have 143 residences, ranging from one- to three-bedrooms. Prices start in the low $800,000s, with three-bedroom homes starting in the $2.2 millions. Two-bedrooms start in the high $1.1 millions. Prices for penthouses were not available.

AMANT ARCHITECT RENDERING

The date that public sales will launch will be announced in the coming weeks.

Designed by Amanat Architect of Vancouver, British Columbia, One88 is inspired by "the shape, aesthetic and lucidity of a quartz crystal that is native to the Pacific Northwest," states a press release from the developer, Bosa Development of Burnaby, British Columbia. Hirsch Bedner and Associates, a global company headquartered in Southern California, is the interior designer.

One88's angular lines and varied contours will allow many of the residences to have shifting private outdoor balconies with varying angles of openness and dimension throughout the exterior. This will provide access to the outdoors with added protection from wind and rain.

The sales gallery, at 200105th Ave N.E., has a 3-D architectural model of the tower, interactive displays for floor plans and views and a vignette of a furnished model residence.

Construction of One88 started in September, but buyers have been inquiring for a year, showing Bellevue is ready for the project, said Bemi Jauhal, director of sales and marketing for Bosa. One88 is the first new condo tower in Bellevue in nearly a decade.

One88 will have outdoor terraces on the third and fifth floors with fireplace lounge areas, a grassy lawn and a saline heated indoor pool and spa. Other amenities include a children's playroom, a golf simulator studio and pet retreat.

Services will include an onsite chef concierge, who can coordinate grocery delivery, laundry pick-up and auto detailing and more. The concierge will also make referrals for personal shopping, interior design, childcare services and event planning.
